

Operations and Production Management

DAY | 3 SEMESTERS 660 hours

AEC EJN.16

In order to keep up with the competition, today's businesses must have highly qualified operations and production management personnel.

Whether it be for the delivery of goods or services, quality, costs and customer satisfaction should be the main concern of today's managers. In light of this reality, the Operations and Production Management program (AEC) provides students with operations and production management skills geared to the characteristics of the international market.

Students acquire skills in production planning and scheduling, quality control and assurance and the manufacturing process, along with others. The program leads to a multitude of stimulating career opportunities both locally and abroad.
